Description

We would like to encourage anyone that was involved in criminal misconduct in the events that occurred on June 15, 2011, to turn yourself in, instead of having to be tracked down, the alternative is much better then having yourself picked up in front of loved ones or at a work place.

In 1994 people were not identified, unlike the massive amounts of photo evidence that has been made available here. Part of the mentality of this riot is that they got away with it in 94, but they have not got away with it this time. It is the hope that anyone even thinking about rioting in the future, in this city, will think twice before doing it. We believe this page is as strong as a deterrent you will find to prevent this from happening again. In no way do we glorify what has happened to our beloved city of glass, and are truly proud to say We are a Vancouverite, We are Canadian, and We Care about this City.

Jason Moreno Im not concerned one bit, i just fail to see why youre putting in so much effort into this when your time could probably be spent elsewhere on somethin alot more beneficial to yourself , you can do this for the rest of your life for all i care lol

These rioters are NOT true fans. If anyone even had the right to riot, it should be the Canucks – they played, they lost – not these stupid monkeys. Way to make our beautiful city look like shit.

If you have any photos and see people you know in them that are being stupid, please tag them. Those idiots have to be held responsible for giving Vancouver and Canada a bad name.

Detecting Crime As It Happens

Facewatch id

Support your community by identifying people that could help make your neighbourhood safer

In partnership with the Police, Facewatch introduce a simple to use phone application (app) which provides the public with images of people, searchable by postcode, that the Police would like to speak to. Primarily focused on low level crime, using images from CCTV cameras, the App is available free to download on iPhones iPads, BlackBerry, and Android devices.

Assistant Commissioner Mark Rowley, MET
Police, responsible for Specialist Crime and Operations:

"The Metropolitan Police Service is determined to exploit the opportunities presented by CCTV to solve crime. The general public can support us in this - both by providing us with images - and helping us to identify those who are responsible for committing crime"

- Works on any Smart phone*
- Search easily using postcode
- Confidential
- Helps reduce crime
- Fully operational in London

* Users of BlackBerry OS5 and below please upgrade to OS6 to use

As for the police...

- Public relations
- Soliciting Information
- Exploiting the interface: interpersonal exploitation
- Warrants and warrantless access
- Social network analysis systems
