1 Ask each other.

If you don't want to go to Hyogo prefecture, pretend that you do. If you have been there before, talk about when and where you went. If you have never been there, look at the photos and talk about them. You may use your imagination to explain aspects of them.

2 Choose . . .

In groups, use the internet to research one of the photos on this page. Take notes. You will explain what you have learned to your classmates.

Homework Assignment

Research one of the Himeji-jo topics. Bring with you to the next class five bullet points (on paper) about what you researched. You will use only these bullet points to tell the class what you found from your research. You may not read anything else. Do not memorize your talk. The purpose of this assignment is to teach students to use bullet points to spur your memory of what you want to talk about, not specifically what you will say.

Do not tell classmates what you have decided to research. Classmates should only find out at the time of your presentation. Do not forget this.

Students who tell others what they decided to research before their presentation time will receive a grade of zero.

You must bring photos or pictures (printed on paper).

Students suspected of simply memorizing material, not bringing five bullet points, or not bringing photos or pictures will receive a grade of zero.

We will do 2 and 3 in class if we have time.
